Miscellaneons.

AN ENEMY'S COURTESY .- When the the Saracens, the Sultan, seeing his troops fly, asked what the number of the Christians who were making all this slaughter? He was told that it was only kink Richard and his men, and that they were all on foot. "Then," said the Sultan. "God forbid that such a noble fellow as king Richard should march on while on you coppice, tinged with fainter gold, foot," and sent him a noble charger. I gaze till the evening glow is gone." The messenger took it, and said, "Sire, what lofty mountainn is he traveling o'er? the Sultan sends you this charger, that What favored valley do his eyes survey? you may not be on foot." The king was What happy lake, beside some foreign shore, as cunning as his enemy, and ordered one of his squires to mount the horse in order to try him. The squire obeyed; My heart beats high-I say with deep delight, but the animal proved fiery; and the squire being unable to hold him in, he And as the stars look out, a gladdening ray he set off at full speed to the Sultan's pavilion The Sultan expected he had got king Richard; and was not a little mortified to discover his mistake.

HENRY CLAY.-Kentucky has been cursed with selfish and unprincipled political leaders. She had one great orator and man-Henry Clay, whom both friend and foe knew where to find. Differ from his political views as widely as you might, it was impossible not to respect the intrepidity with which he defended them. He was by far too much of a Union worshiper to suit us; but he was a slaveholder; he had blood and manhood in his composition, and we firmly believe, had he lived to this time, would have brooked the very devil himself in the chair of Washington, as easily as a Black Republican President. Were he living now, he would be leading a Southern column on the banks, not of the Ohio, but the Miami, size. Richmond Examiner.

THE CHRISTIAN SOLDIER .- Christian men in our armies should labor themselves with redoubled diligence to counteract the spirit of license which camp life is so sure to engender. There is abundant room for prayer and the offices of sincere devotion in all the departments of military duty. A man will be a better soldier if he is also a good christian. The prayer and his arm with wondrous vigor. It was the praying Puritans who made the armies of Cromwell invincible. It was this same trust in God that gave our Revolutionary sires such strength in the day of battle, and which went before them like a visible presence in all their sufferings and toils. There is no reason why our armies should not be pervaded with this same Christian spirit and Christian

Vow FOR Vow .- A clergyman took for his text the following words-"Vow to the Lord thy vows." An Indian heard him attentively, and at the conclusion he stepped up to the parson and thus accosted him-
